Tom is the President of InnerWill Leadership Institute and has twenty years of experience as a leadership coach, facilitator, and speaker, and has worked with over 225 clients to help transform leaders and their organizations. Tom is a certified business coach and has a Doctorate in Leadership from The George Washington University. Tom is currently an adjunct instructor in Virginia Commonwealth Universities' Executive MBA Program.

Tom is a highly engaging and passionate speaker—he brings a wealth of experience and knowledge to his presentations and breaks down difficult concepts into real world examples. His goal is to provide audiences with practical skills to lead more effectively at work, at home, and in their communities. He does not take himself too seriously, and believes that we learn best when we are laughing and having a good time. Instead of downloading information, Tom engages audiences in conversations and brings value based on a strong foundation of experience, education and passion.
